William Pennefather The beloved friend who is the subject of this memoir once wrote concerning the death of a believer - What is death to one whom God has pardoned and sanctified? It is passing from a prison with its fetters, to a Fathers house where joy and liberty abound. It is exchanging ignorance for knowledge, warfare for victory, trembling and sorrow for perfect peace and endless glory, And yet though we know the Lord s chariots convey our loved ones into regions of light, we do, we must, mourn; we follow them, but it is with tears, as we try to catch a glimpse of the brightness in which they shall abide for evermore. We have but to wait until we too shall hear the voice which has summoned them, saying, The Master is come, and calleth for thee. More than five years have elapsed since he who penned these words has realised the fulness of the glory, even now the portion of those whose spirits are with Jesus;...
