Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Miscellanea Antiqua Anglicana, Vol. 1: Or a Select Collection of Curious Tracts The following particulars respecting David Riccio have been collected from Buchanan, Sir James Melville, and other cotemporary writers, as a proper appendage to the curious and interesting portrait of this minion of fortune, which is now for the first time engraved. The original picture, of the same size, is in the collection of Constantine Jennings, Esq. by whose liberal and kind indulgence it was permitted to be engraved expressly for this work. The artist, Mr. Wilkin, has succeeded in giving a very accurate copy, and seized the character of the head in a most skilful manner. It appears to have been the work of a Venetian artist of no mean degree of skill; and in its style and colouring partakes of the manner of Zucchero in his smaller portraits. That it is a faithful and genuine representation of this favourite of the unfortunate Mary, there is no reason to doubt, although it is now impossible to trace the collection from whence it was obtained: it was purchased by Mr. Jennings from a picture-dealer many years since, and had been picked up in an obscure part of the northern metropolis. It is painted on a small circular panel; and on the back are rudely cut into the wood the name Davit Rixio, and the date 1564. The mode in which the name is spelt is accordant with the Venetian method of orthography, in which the x is frequently substituted for the z or c.
