Excerpt: . . . obliged to select for him an original habitat corresponding with these conditions. Let us remark, once for all, that where these conditions have been maintained, there the race has invariably made least progress from its original state. The lowest forms of man-life are tropical. The most original types are found in those regions where the environment has prevented the evolution of the higher human varieties. In a word, the life of man seems in the tropical situation to have continued on Ize orzlgimzlpam, with little variation under the influences of physical nature. Not so, however, with those peoples who have departed from the original enDeyglgpmentcq. vironment. As soon as the unclothed primitive man, P Yi8in-covered with his delicate skin, made his way from his warm and equable climatic surroundings and began to be exposed, first to the vicissitudes, and further on to the rigors...
